There has been a fair demand for fu-ture delivery on contracts, with a dealine again to the lowest quotations as far reached this season. Last year spacu-lators were sellers under the belief of lower prices, on the large crop ideas then prevalent; planters, knowing better the real position of the crop prospects, were buyers, and many of them realized a good profit. This year planters are sellers, buyers, and many of them realized a good profit. This year planters are sellers, and willing ones too, at the lowest point so far reached; it may be for the reason that they also, this season, are better posted in relation to the extent of the yield. The sales of the weak have been 4800 bales, generally as follows, with some on private terms: Average Low Middling, October, 263-c. Even running, 15th October, 27c. Rasis, 22d October, 253-c, 253-c, we have had, during the past week, highly favorable weather for picking and securing the insturing cotton. The heavy gale of wind and rain which prevailed in these latitudes on 9th, 10th and 11th inst, did not extend to the cotton region, and we are again receiving good accounts from every section of the cotton growing country. Planters are busy securing the result of their season's labor, many of whom say they have work in this occupation intill the gaid of January next. The result is less faith in the low estimates lately indulged in, and a decided tendency to more conservative figures as a total for their copy of 1873-70.
